Types of sentences

The most basic sentences are made up of a subject and a verb; a compound sentence has two or more independent clauses joined by a coordinating conjunction.

Ex: The train was late.

Made up of an independent clause and one or more dependent clauses.

Ex: While he waited at the train station, Joe realized that the train was late.

Made up of two or more coordinate independent clauses and one or more dependent clauses.

Ex: His blue eyes were light, bright and sparkling behind half-mooned spectacles, and his nose was long and crooked, like it'd been broken.
