

NON-FICTION

notebook tabs reference pages

editable
COVERS

also available in a bundle

ENGLISH

notebook tab reference pages

GRAMMAR

notebook tab reference pages

LITERATURE

notebook tab reference pages

NON-FICTION

notebook tab reference pages

WRITING

notebook tab reference pages

BUNDLE
of all terms

editable
COVERS

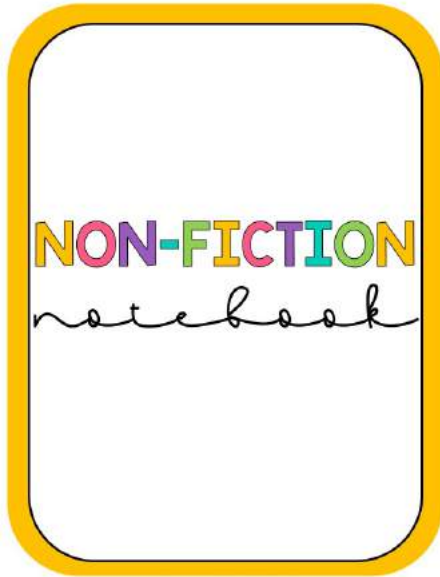

the hungry teacher

©MARTINA CAHILL-THE HUNGRY TEACHER

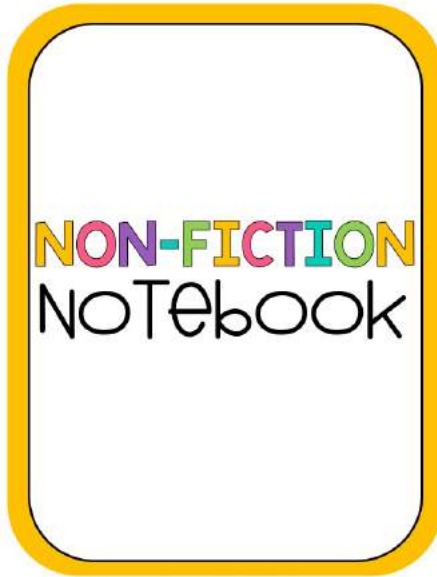

©MARTINA CAHILL-THE HUNGRY TEACHER

NON-FICTION

print and cursive options

©SPOTING CAHILL-THE HUNGRY TEACHER

©SPOTING CAHILL-THE HUNGRY TEACHER

nonfiction writing
argument	Definition: A reason or set of reasons given with the aim of persuading others that an action or idea is right or wrong. Example: Alyssa wrote a paper and her argument was that Martin Luther King was better at encouraging change during the Civil Rights Movement, than Malcolm X.
literary analysis	Definition: Literary analysis focuses on how plot/structure, character, setting, and many other techniques are used by the author to create meaning. Example: We had to write a literary analysis essay on how the author used the characters' transformation to reveal a theme of the novel, To Kill a Mockingbird.
logical analysis	Definition: A reason or set of reasons given with the aim of persuading others that an action or idea is right or wrong. Example: Alyssa wrote a paper and her argument was that Martin Luther King was better at encouraging change during the Civil Rights Movement, than Malcolm X.
author's purpose	Definition: In a rhetorical analysis you are being asked to identify the particular strategies that an author is using to appeal to or persuade a given audience. Example: We had to write a rhetorical analysis essay on Martin Luther King Jr.'s Letter From Birmingham Jail.

©SPOTING CAHILL-THE HUNGRY TEACHER

NON-FICTION WRITING
ARGUMENT	Definition: A reason or set of reasons given with the aim of persuading others that an action or idea is right or wrong. Example: Alyssa wrote a paper and her argument was that Martin Luther King was better at encouraging change during the Civil Rights Movement, than Malcolm X.
LITERARY ANALYSIS	Definition: Literary analysis focuses on how plot/structure, character, setting, and many other techniques are used by the author to create meaning. Example: We had to write a literary analysis essay on how the author used the characters' transformation to reveal a theme of the novel, To Kill a Mockingbird.
CRITICAL ANALYSIS	Definition: A reason or set of reasons given with the aim of persuading others that an action or idea is right or wrong. Example: Alyssa wrote a paper and her argument was that Martin Luther King was better at encouraging change during the Civil Rights Movement, than Malcolm X.
AUTHOR'S PURPOSE	Definition: In a rhetorical analysis you are being asked to identify the particular strategies that an author is using to appeal to or persuade a given audience. Example: We had to write a rhetorical analysis essay on Martin Luther King Jr.'s Letter From Birmingham Jail.

©SPOTING CAHILL-THE HUNGRY TEACHER

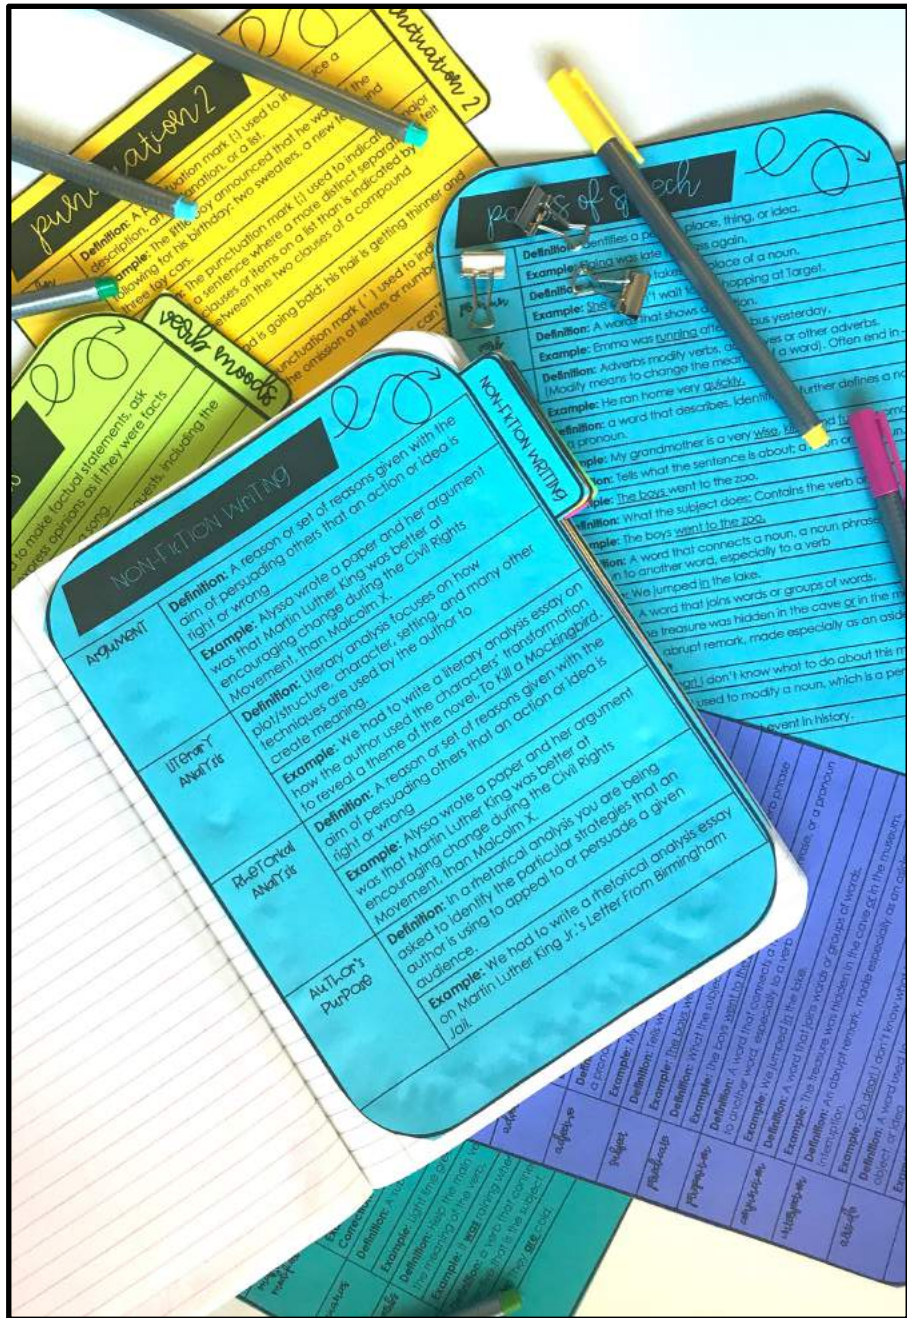

NON-FICTION

includes editable notebooks covers

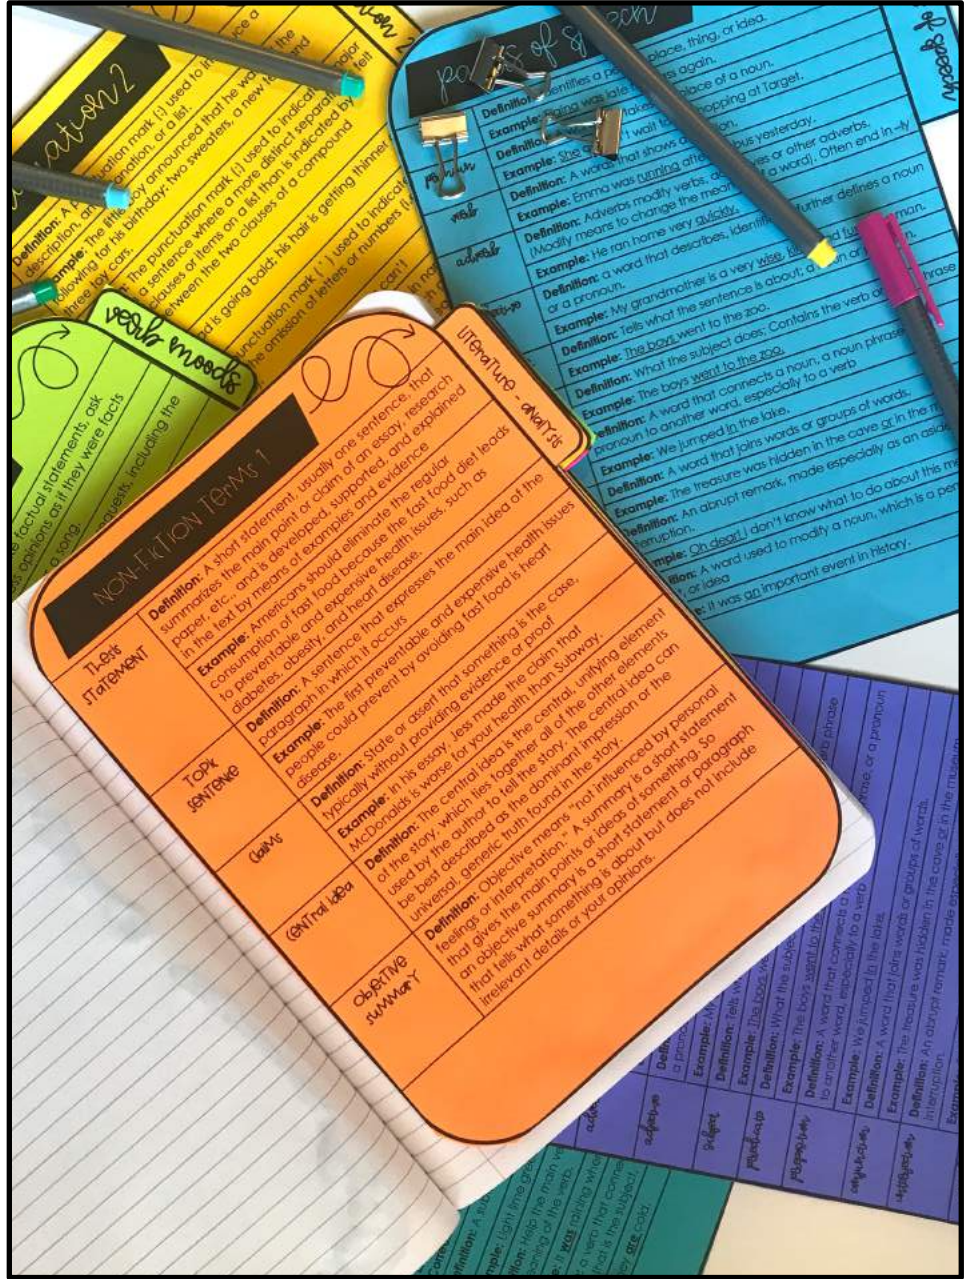

NON-FICTION

notebook tabs reference pages

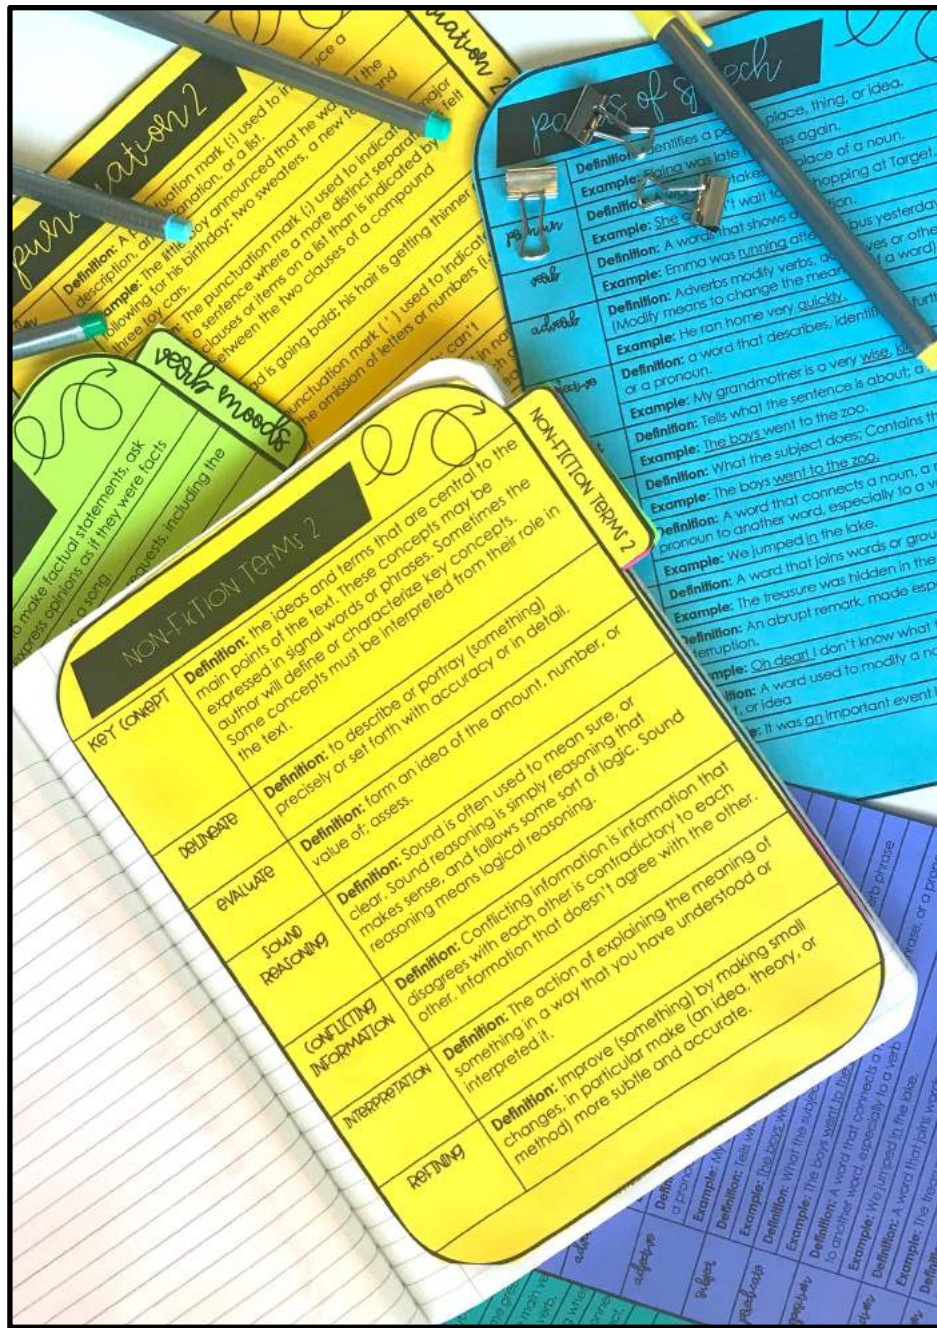

NON-FICTION

notebook tab reference pages

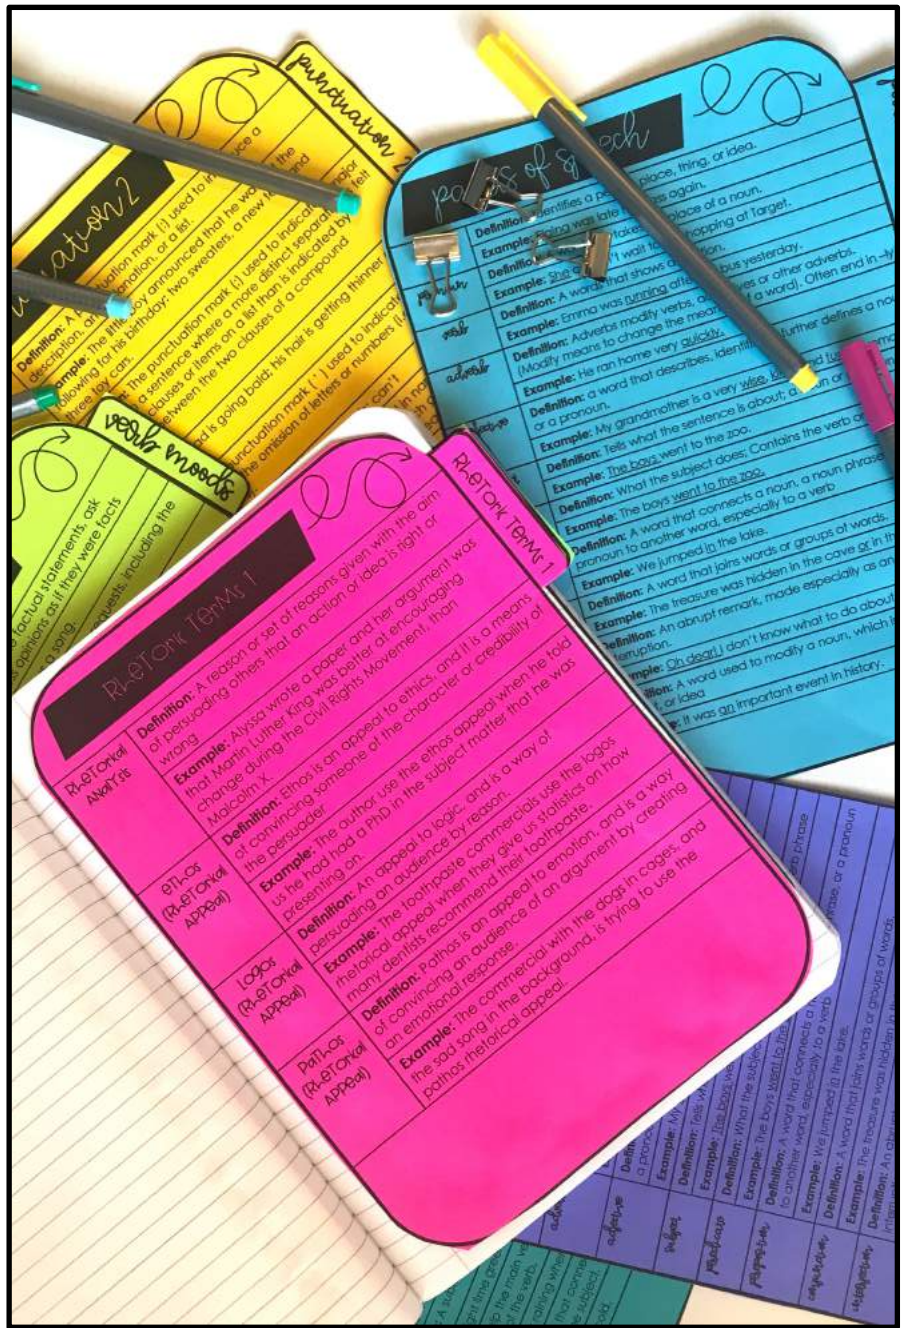

NON-FICTION

notebook tab reference pages

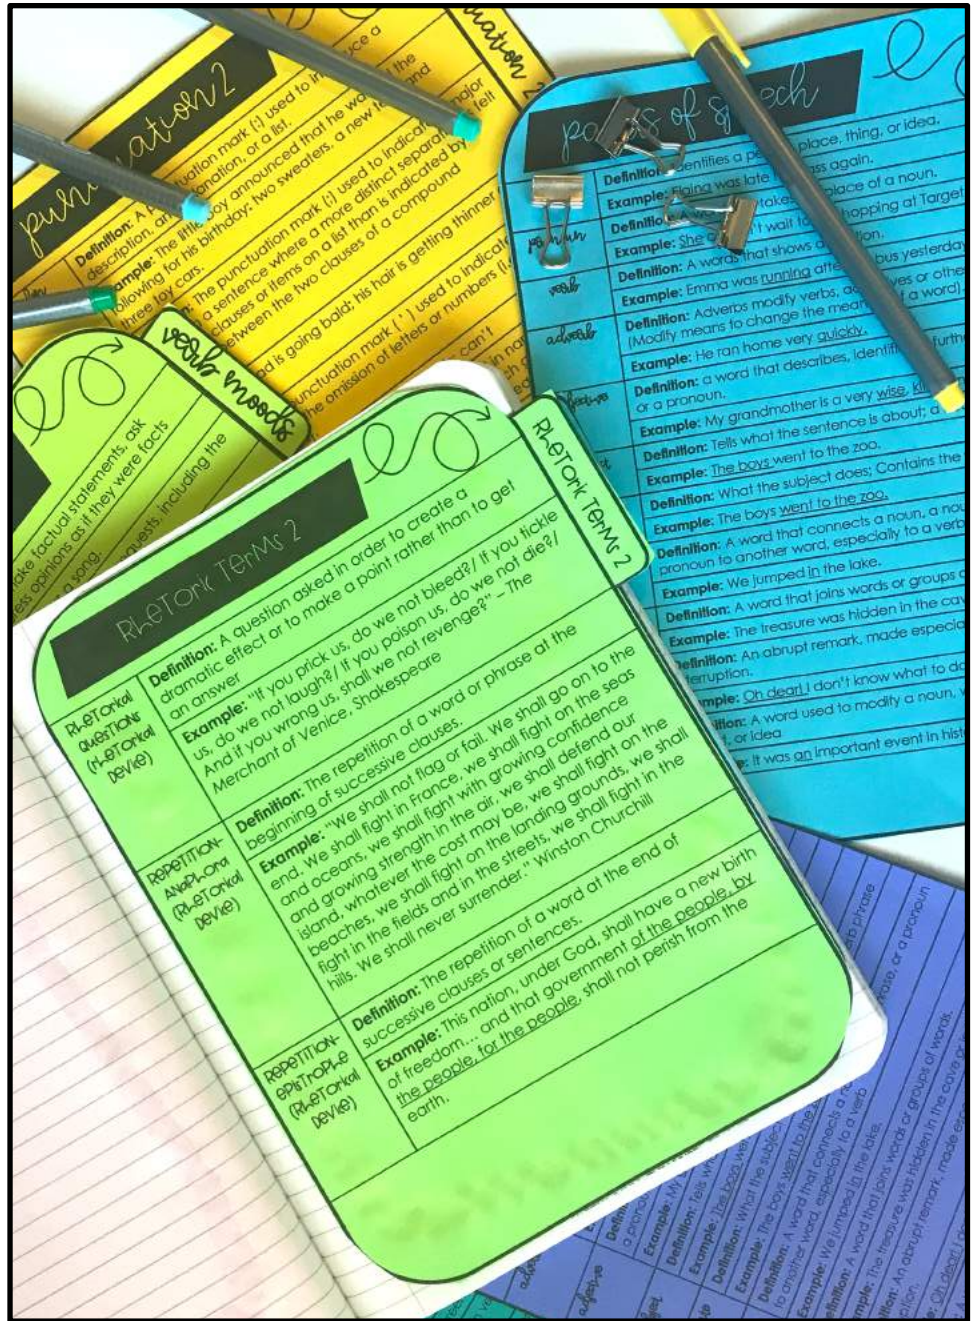

NON-FICTION

notebook tabs reference pages

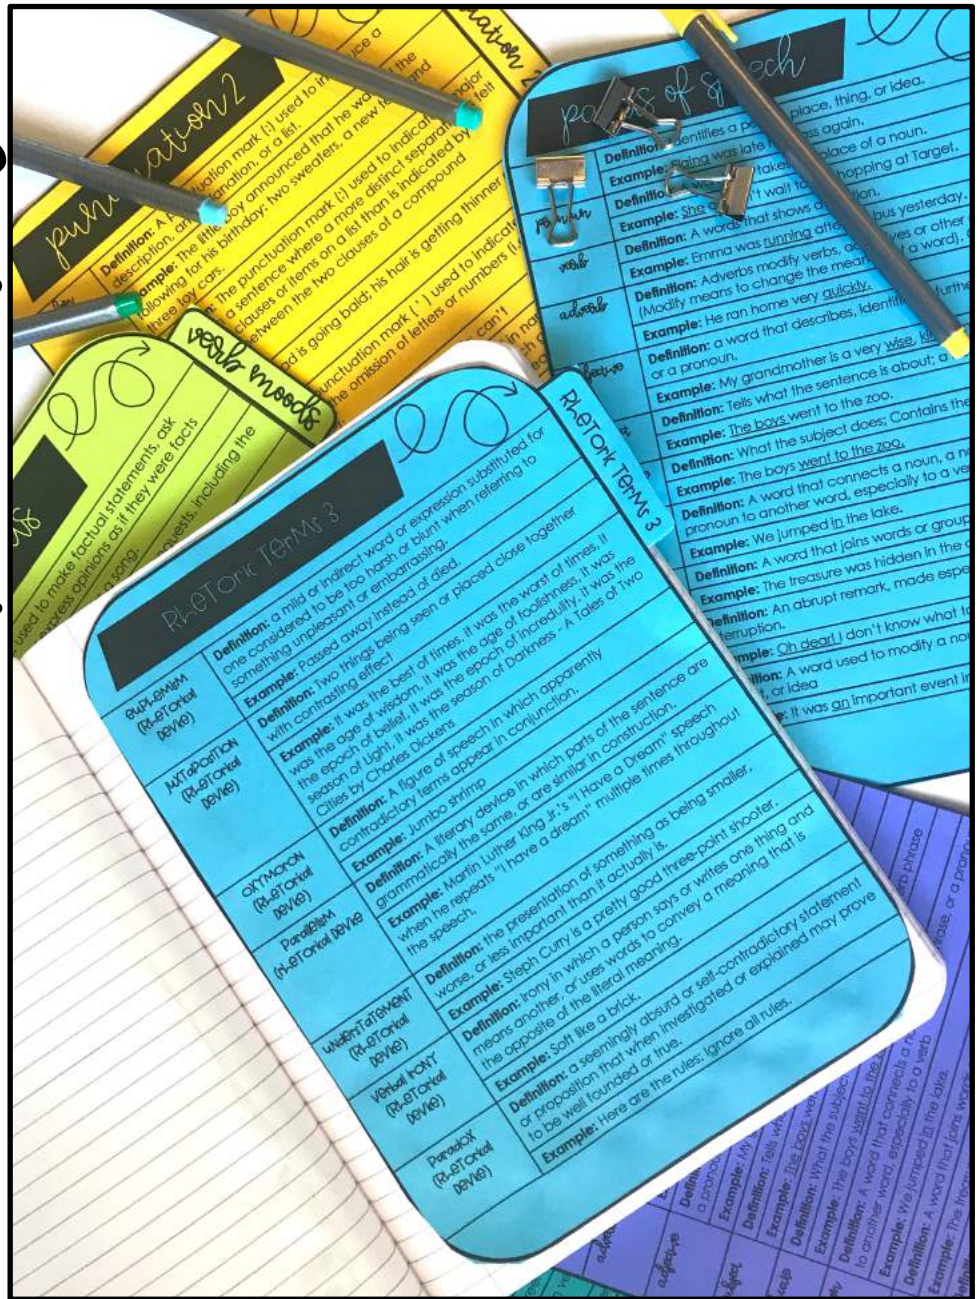

NON-FICTION

notebook tabs reference pages

NON-FICTION

notebook tab reference pages

NON-FICTION

notebook tab reference pages

